BRIDGENORTH

BridgeNorth is a registered charitable organization based in York Region, Ontario, which exists to address and prevent the unique problems faced by victims of sexual exploitation and human trafficking by providing programs to assist with their departure and transition from the sex industry. They are dedicated to restoring the inherent dignity and self-worth of sexually exploited women and girls by meeting their physical, mental, emotional, and spiritual needs.

BridgeNorth offers direct service to women, girls, and families affected by the sex industry. They also seek to advance education and awareness on the issue of sexual exploitation by training both professionals and the public in ways to recognize, prevent, respond to, and combat it. BridgeNorth is committed to speaking on behalf of the exploited, advocating for them in public and private arenas.

BridgeNorth started in 2014 with the goal of seeing an end to sexual exploitation in Canada. Casandra Diamond, founder and director, herself a survivor of the Canadian sex industry forged the way to make BridgeNorth survivor founded and survivor led. BridgeNorth exists because slavery still exists right here in Canada. In fact, Canada has become a source, transit, and destination country for human trafficking, primarily in the sex industry.

Modern-day sex trafficking affects girls and women from all economic backgrounds. Homelessness and poverty are certainly risk factors, but individuals from safe homes and neighbourhoods can also be targeted. They are lured in from schoolyards, shopping malls, and social media channels, then forced into prostitution. Predators pose as friends and boyfriends, promising a glamorous life of love and wealth. In reality, their victims live a horrific nightmare from which it is very difficult to escape. The victims of human trafficking and sexual exploitation are among our society's most vulnerable individuals. It would be very difficult to find a group who is more oppressed than those who are being sexually exploited in Canada. BridgeNorth exists to help them escape a life of slavery and build a new life of their choosing.

Vision:

To see an end to sexual exploitation in Canada.

Mission:

To restore the inherent dignity and value of sexually exploited women and girls by meeting their physical, mental, emotional and spiritual needs.

Values:

Faith: We believe freedom comes through the saving knowledge of Jesus Christ.

Compassion: We value people and have a heart for the exploited.

Community: We believe healthy relationships build strong communities.

Advocacy: We advocate for those who cannot speak for themselves.
